Aims/Objectives: To help individuals and organisations reduce their own impact on global warming. Main purpose is enable projects that will help reduce the build up of carbon dioxide. The projects are either technology projects that reduce emissions at source or reforestation projects that sequester CO<sub>2</sub> from the atmosphere. The technology projects, which are the main focus, can be either in renewable energy or in energy efficiency. The main focus of Climate Care's projects is to achieve a reduction in greenhouse gas emissions, although in practice some of the projects deliver climate benefits far in excess of the directly measurable reductions achieved. ClimateCare's goal is to have the biggest impact in tackling climate change, globally by creating a low carbon world requires bold, innovative projects that make real reductions. We'll make sure that your carbon offsets help to fund them:- They promise that they will make the greenhouse gas reductions you pay for. These reductions will; be made through projects that meet internationally recognised standards and are independently verified; be made through a portfolio, ensuring that the performance of individual projects does not affect delivery of your reductions and be made as soon as possible. In their 2007 financial year, 78% of emission reductions sold through our General Portfolio had already been made.

Aims/Objectives:	Internationally renowned for working at the forefront of interdisciplinary research, on a range of environmental issues. Uses social science analysis as a link between existing scientific knowledge and policy guidance, with the aim of mitigating environmental problems in both developed and developing economies. Central to its mission is an ongoing commitment to explore issues that are important not only to a range of academic interests, but also relevant to policy-makers and stakeholders in the field of environmental sustainability. Also strives for excellence in the conduct and presentation of its research, and aims to make the findings relevant for a variety of circumstances and users. The Centre's interdisciplinary programme is based around a number of research areas and is funded from a range of sources including the UK research councils, government departments and agencies, the European Commission, NGO's and the private sector.

Aims/Objectives: While some groups are working on the animal welfare side of genetic engineering, others are working on the patenting of life. Some want complete bans, some the labelling of GE products and others moratoriums, while others are simply concentrating on raising public awareness. It became apparent that all these groups needed to establish some common ground and exchange information in order to be as effective as possible. The other need was for information to get out to the general public in order to inform and enable them to become actively involved. To achieve these aims the GEN exists as a clearing house for information.

Aims/Objectives:	To protect the natural environment and the people and wildlife that depend upon it by linking environmental security, human rights and social need. It is an international organisation dedicated to training and supporting local activists, communities and organisations in the developing world, helping them to bring environmental injustice to national and international attention. Creates and implements solutions where they are needed most - training local people and communities who are directly affected, to investigate, expose and combat environmental degradation and abuse. Uses the latest video, camera equipment and technologies to document both the problems and solutions, working through the media to create the momentum for effective action and actively seeks to develop environmentally and socially sustainable programmes with local communities.

Aims/Objectives: Worldwide organisation supporting tribal peoples. It stands for their right to decide their own future and helps them to protect their lives, lands and human rights. Has supporters in 82 countries and works for tribal peoples' rights in three complementary ways: education, advocacy and campaigns. Also offers tribal people themselves a platform to address the world. Works closely with local indigenous organisations, and focus on tribal peoples who have the most to lose, usually those most recently in contact with the outside world.

Aims/Objectives: Is a UK based organisation that works with an international network of women workers. To facilitate the international exchange of information and experience between women workers; to help mobilise international support for the struggles of women workers; to facilitate international dialogue and discussion about issues crucial to women workers; to co-ordinate and focus this dialogue in order to be able to genuinely represent women's voices in international forums. Enable reproduction of this information in appropriate forms for educationalists, media personnel and policy makers. This would be done only after full consultation with participants; to enable active lobbying of policy makers in international forums which crucially affect women workers; to share materials produced by groups, such as worker handbooks and local research reports, with women's groups with similar issues in other parts of the world and educationalists and policy makers in Europe; to ensure that participants in the network are kept fully informed about the activities and materials of other groups through direct communication; to enable participants to gain easier and more immediate access to information about international policies and strategies which affect women workers and to enable participants to make specific requests for information or contacts, e.g. data on particular companies.

Status: Charity
Formed: 2001
Influence: England and Wales
Aims/Objectives: An environmental charity, with one of its three guiding objects being to protect, conserve, rehabilitate and improve the rivers of England and Wales for the public benefit. Recognises that environmental improvement of rivers cannot be achieved in isolation, and this section of the website covers the environmental regulatory framework in which we live and the government departments and agencies charged with administering and advising on that framework. It recognises that, though the original trigger for many rivers trusts emanates from fishery interests, the river ecosystem is much wider and more complex. The section therefore also covers and promotes sustainable, holistic and integrated catchment management and sound environmental practices, recognising the wider economic benefits for local communities.

Aims/Objectives: The Green Guide is about changing our patterns of consumption and seeking out greener, natural and ethical alternatives to every conceivable type of product and service. It's about buying more wisely, consuming less, wasting less, thinking through the consequences of our purchases. It's about reducing our impact on the planet and our fellows by making choices that are better for us, better for the environment, and better for other people. It doesn't preach, but it does show that there is a way forward to one-planet, sustainable living, a means to combat climate change and a way to protect the world's scarce resources.

Aims/Objectives: To create effective action by our targeted groups for litter free, sustainable environments; helping to improve local environments by changing attitudes and public behaviour of the general public through national campaigns. By using market research, they have been able to look at the different messages that people require to make them change their attitudes towards issues such as litter and waste, and anti social activities such as graffiti, neighbourhood noise, fly-posting and fly-tipping.

Status: Royal Commission
Formed: 1970
Influence: International
Aims/Objectives: An independent standing body established to advise the Queen, government, Parliament and the public on environmental issues. Terms of reference as set out in its Royal Warrant are to advise on matters, both national and international, concerning the pollution of the environment; on the adequacy of research in this field; and the future possibilities of danger to the environment. Within this remit the Commission has freedom to consider and advise on any matter it chooses; the government may also request consideration of particular topics. The Commission has interpreted 'pollution' broadly as covering any introduction by man into the environment of substances or energy liable to cause hazards to human health, harm to living resources and ecological systems, damage to structures or amenity, or interference with legitimate uses of the environment. It now approaches issues within the framework of sustainable development.

Aims/Objectives: To gather and apply knowledge, improve understanding and predict the behaviour of the natural environment and its resources. Funds and manages research and training in earth system science, advancing knowledge of planet Earth as a complex, interacting system. Its work covers the full range of atmospheric, earth, terrestrial and aquatic sciences, from the depth of the oceans to the upper atmosphere. Because the environment is global, they work with scientists and other partners around the world. Uses a budget of about £220 million a year to fund scientific research in universities and at its own sites. About 2,700 people are employed in NERC research centres and a further 1,800 are funded annually through a variety of research and training awards in university departments and other bodies

Data Centres

NERC Data Discovery Service

Atmospheric Science, Earth Sciences, Earth Observation, Marine Science, Polar Science, Science-based archaeology, Terrestrial & Freshwater Science, Hydrology, Bioinformatics – data management for environmental genomics research.

Information

Much of the data collected by NERC provide a unique and irreplaceable record of the environment. Measurements accumulated over decades and historical records dating back beyond the 19th century provide a valuable resource to support research, survey and monitoring activities and for users in academia, government, the public sector, industry and commerce. It is essential that data generated through NERC supported activities are properly managed to ensure their long-term availability. Our network of data centres provide support and guidance in data management to those funded by NERC, are responsible for the long-term curation of data and provide access to NERC's data holdings. The NERC Data Policy details our commitment to support the long-term management of data and also outlines the roles and responsibilities of all those involved in the collection and management of data. Provides an integrated, searchable catalogue of the data holdings of NERC's data centres. It can be used to find information on what data the NERC data centres hold and how to access these data.

Aims/Objectives:	A development charity with a difference and has a unique approach to development, they don't start with technology, but with people. The tools may be simple or sophisticated but to provide long-term, appropriate and practical answers, they must be firmly in the hands of local people, people who shape technology and control it for themselves. Believes that the right idea, however small, can change lives. It can create jobs, improve health and livelihoods, and help people have better lives. That's why, since 1966, they have been working with poor people to develop the skills and technology that will enable them to build a better future.

Aims/Objectives: Conservation involves the handing on to future generations that which is valued. It is the duty of the Conservation Officer, not to stand in the way of progress or change, but to negotiate the transition from past to present in ways that minimise the damage change may cause and maximise any benefits. Conservation is a process, which seeks both to question change and to reconcile modern needs with significance of what we have inherited in order to safeguard the interests of future generations.

Contact: Information
Aims/Objectives: Aims to improve working conditions and to empower workers in the global garment industry, in order to end the oppression, exploitation and abuse of workers in this industry, most of whom are women. It does this by putting pressure on companies to take responsibility to ensure that their garments are produced in decent working conditions; supporting workers, trade unions and NGOs in producer countries; raising awareness among consumers by providing accurate information about working conditions in the global garment and sportswear industry, in order to mobilise citizens to use their power as consumers and exploring legal possibilities for improving working conditions, and lobbying for legislation to promote good working conditions and for laws that would compel governments and companies to become ethical consumers.
Projects: Is an international campaign, focused on improving working conditions in the global garment and sportswear industries, and empower the workers in it. There is a Clean Clothes Campaign in 12 European countries. These are Austria, Belgium (North and South), Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom. Presently the CCC is made up of autonomous coalitions with NGOs (consumer, research, women's, fair trade and youth organisations, solidarity groups, churches, etc) and trade unions as members in European countries, each with a secretariat, and each sending a representative to the European Coordination Meeting: CCC 'projects' or 'project groups' or 'task forces' in several garment producing countries (Bulgaria, India); a loose, informal international partner network of NGOs, unions, individuals and institutions in most countries where garments are produced and an international secretariat.

In addition to this they are in close cooperation with organisations or coalitions that run similar campaigns in other consumer countries (ex. US groups, Fair Wear in Australia, Ethical Trade Action Group in Canada); several NGOs in European countries that do a lot of CCC-related work and may one day establish a complete campaign (Italy, Portugal) and the international trade union organisations. Over 200 different organisations participate in the campaign, the campaigns work autonomously at the national level, and come together to work jointly at the European level. This European campaign network is backed up by a broader, international network that includes trade unions, NGOs, and individuals in countries where garments are produced, i.e. Asia, Africa, Eastern Europe, and Central America. The international secretariat of the campaign is based in Amsterdam. The CCC also cooperates with similar campaigns in the United States, Canada, and Australia.

Aims/Objectives: To promote government, private sector and individual action to limit human-induced climate change to ecologically sustainable levels. To support and empower civil society organisations to influence the design and development of an effective global strategy to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and ensure its implementation at international, national and local levels in the promotion of equity and sustainable development.
Projects: Is a worldwide network of over 430 Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs). For the contact details of all CAN members visit the CAN Directory on <http://www.climnet.org/members/criter.htm>
 Provides a forum for NGOs to share ideas and expertise, strategies and information on climate change, promote actions and link these with wider efforts. Acts as a source of information for its members both on International and EU policy developments, through mailing lists, newsletter, website, events. also ensures that NGO voices are heard in the wider policy arena by liaising with varied policy stakeholders and Institutions. Promotes and supports its members' actions by disseminating them more widely and helping to link them to the wider climate agenda. One of their main tasks is to facilitate co-ordination of members' climate related work while at the same time co-operating with the other CAN focal points in Africa, South Asia, South East Asia, Latin America, the USA, Canada, Australia and Central and Eastern Europe. CAN-Europe builds partnerships with industry and business, trade associations, local authorities and other sectors of society. Monitors and encourages the implementation of policies and measures that combat climate change in the EU as well as working with national NGOs to do the same at the member state level. Work is done on all aspects of EU policies linked to climate change issues. This includes the European Climate Change Programme (ECCP), emissions trading in the EU, promotion of renewable energy, ratification of the Kyoto Protocol in the EU, liberalisation of the energy market, security of energy supply, green electricity and F-gases.

Aims/Objectives:	To promote the responsible management of the world's forests. Brings people together to promote responsible forest management and to find solutions to the problems created by bad forestry practices. Does this in providing standard setting, trademark assurance, accreditation services and market access for companies and organizations interested in responsible forestry.
Projects:	In 2007 the FSC Global Strategy was adopted and this strategy charts the course of FSC for the next five years. The vision is so that the world's forests meet the social, ecological, and economic rights and needs of the present generation without compromising those of future generations. Promotes environmentally appropriate, socially beneficial, and economically viable management of the world's forests. Environmentally appropriate forest management ensures that the harvest of timber and non-timber products maintains the forest's biodiversity, productivity, and ecological processes. Socially beneficial forest management helps both local people and society at large to enjoy long term benefits and also provides strong incentives to local people to sustain the forest resources and adhere to long-term management plans. Economically viable forest management means that forest operations are structured and managed so as to be sufficiently profitable, without generating financial profit at the expense of the forest resource, the ecosystem, or affected communities. The tension between the need to generate adequate financial returns and the principles of responsible forest operations can be reduced through efforts to market the full range of forest products and services for their best value. Their role is to bring together people, organisations and businesses of the Global South and North to develop consensus based solutions that promote responsible stewardship of the world's forests. People, organisations and businesses in the Global South and Global North invest time, resources and credibility in FSC because forests are important to them. FSC's solutions respond to challenges created by poor management of forest resources and are supported by social, environmental and economic stakeholders in the Global South and Global North alike. They are used by people, organisations and businesses engaging markets to encourage responsible stewardship of forest resources.

HEADQUARTERS / SECRETARIAT

Name:	Friends of the Earth International Secretariat
Address:	PO Box 19199, Amsterdam 1000 GD, The Netherlands
Telephone No:	+31 20 622 1369
E Mail:	foei@foei.org
Web:	http://www.foei.org
Contact:	Information
Formed:	1972
Aims/Objectives:	World's largest grassroots environmental network, uniting 69 national member groups and some 5,000 local activist groups on every continent. With over 2 million members and supporters around the world, we campaign on today's most urgent environmental and social issues. We challenge the current model of economic and corporate globalization, and promote solutions that will help to create environmentally sustainable and socially just societies. Our international positions are informed and strengthened by our work with communities, and our alliances with indigenous peoples, farmers' movements, trade unions, human rights groups and others.
Projects:	Climate and Energy Justice:- The world is facing two related challenges that threaten the lives and livelihoods of billions of people: climate change and the global energy crisis related to the competition for resources. We demand climate and energy justice which is the right of all peoples to a fair share of the earth's resources within sustainable limits. Historical polluters must immediately reduce their greenhouse gas emissions and take responsibility for the impacts of climate change in vulnerable communities. Corporate:- We call for rights for communities and citizens to choose their local economies and to hold corporations legally accountable for bad practices. We challenge the powerful role of corporations in institutions like the World Trade Organization, the World Bank, the UN system and the World Economic Forum. Food Sovereignty:- We support the right of countries to ban or restrict the introduction of Genetically-Modified Organisms (GMO's). We believe that countries have the right to decide what they want to eat, and we support sustainable agricultural practices & food sovereignty in order to avoid food crises in the first place. Forests:- We want a halt to machine-intensive corporate logging and the conversion of forests to agriculture and pastures. We oppose "carbon sinks" and other schemes that replace diverse forests with tree plantations. We want local communities and indigenous peoples control to their forests in their traditional sustainable way. Finance:- We want to see an end to taxpayers' money being used by public institutions like the World Bank and Export Credit Agencies to subsidize destructive oil, mining and gas projects and to stop public money being used to finance privatization of water and other essential services. Trade:- We campaign to replace corporate globalization with fair and sustainable economies, based on democracy, diversity, reduced consumption, cooperation and caution. We work with others to curb the power and scope of the World Trade Organization and other regional and bilateral trade liberalization agreements. Core themes running through our work are: protecting human & environmental rights; protecting the planet's disappearing biodiversity and the repayment of ecological debt owed by rich countries to those they have exploited for their own economic benefit. Our groups campaign on many other issues including desertification & Antarctica. We are actively involved with the World Social Forum & work with many other groups & partners who share many of our aims.

Aims/Objectives:	Major environmental pressure group is involved in world wide campaigns against the abuse of the natural world. Exists because this fragile earth deserves a voice. It needs solutions; it needs change and it needs action. An independent global campaigning organisation that acts to change attitudes and behaviour, to protect and conserve the environment and to promote peace by catalysing an energy revolution to address the number one threat facing our planet: climate change; defending our oceans by challenging wasteful and destructive fishing, and creating a global network of marine reserves; protecting the world's ancient forests and the animals, plants and people that depend on them; working for disarmament and peace by tackling the causes of conflict and calling for the elimination of all nuclear weapons; creating a toxic free future with safer alternatives to hazardous chemicals in today's products and manufacturing and campaigning for sustainable agriculture by rejecting genetically engineered organisms, protecting biodiversity and encouraging socially responsible farming.

Projects: Each national office operates campaigns within their country as well. Visit the web site for full information on projects, programmes and assistance that can be given.

Aims/Objectives:	Is an international association of local governments as well as national and regional local government organizations that have made a commitment to sustainable development.
Projects:	A global organisation with thirteen offices in five continents. Over 1027 cities, towns, counties, and their associations worldwide comprise ICLEI's growing membership. Works with these and hundreds of other local governments through international performance-based, results-oriented campaigns and programs. More than 150 individuals work with them worldwide to assist their Members and develop programs and campaigns on local sustainability. Provides technical consulting, training, and information services to build capacity, share knowledge, and support local government in the implementation of sustainable development at the local level. The basic premise is that locally designed initiatives can provide an effective and cost-efficient way to achieve local, national, and global sustainability objectives. For information about the regional work of ICLEI, please contact the Regional Secretariats listed below.

Aims/Objectives:	Works to improve animal welfare, prevent animal cruelty and abuse, protect wildlife and provide animal rescue around the world. From stopping the elephant ivory trade, to ending the Canadian seal hunt and saving the whales from extinction and works to create solutions that benefit both animals and people
Projects:	From the outset, the founders of the International Fund for Animal Welfare, rejected the notion that the interests of humans and animals were separate. Instead they embraced the understanding that the fate and future of harp seals-and all other animals on Earth-are inextricably linked to our own. Their actions drew international attention to the plight of the seal pups and successfully rallied worldwide condemnation of the hunt. Thanks to continued vigilance, it is now illegal to hunt white-coat seal pups for commercial purposes on the ice floes off Canada's east coast. This is a fragile victory, however, for Canada's commercial seal hunt persists. They continue to document and expose abuses of the commercial hunt and press for an end to this cruel, unsustainable slaughter. Over the years, the small team of committed campaigners reaching out to help seals has grown to become the world's leading international animal welfare organization. They now begin their fourth decade of operation with more than 200 experienced campaigners, legal and political experts, and internationally acclaimed scientists working from offices in 15 countries around the world.

Formed:	1956
Aims/Objectives:	Helps the world find pragmatic solutions to our most pressing environment and development challenges. It supports scientific research, manages field projects all over the world and brings governments, non-government organizations, United Nations agencies, companies and local communities together to develop and implement policy, laws and best practice. Is the world's oldest and largest global environmental network - a democratic membership union with more than 1,000 government and NGO member organizations, and almost 11,000 volunteer scientists in more than 160 countries.
Projects:	Is first and foremost a union of members that cares deeply about biodiversity and whose fundamental expertise is on species, habitats and ecosystems. It recognises the intrinsic value of nature, and has learned that biodiversity underpins the well-being of human societies and their economies. Has also learnt that conservation can only succeed if attention is given to the underlying causes of biodiversity loss, while actions are taken at the same time to mitigate the direct drivers of change. They have demonstrated that effectively managed natural resources are key to sustainable development, support peaceful communities and can help reduce poverty. Building on this approach, and in view of the ever-growing threat to environmental health and the lack of progress towards sustainability, the IUCN Programme recognises the continuing need to support biodiversity conservation at all levels, with governments, civil society and the private sector. It strengthens the Union's heartland work on conserving biodiversity as the basis for developing more effective and strategic interventions linked to the global sustainability agenda in the areas of climate change, energy, poverty and security, and economy and markets. The IUCN Programme 2009–2012 provides the framework for planning, implementing, monitoring, and evaluating the conservation work undertaken by the Commissions and the Secretariat with and on behalf of members. It is a result-based, demand-driven plan of action that addresses global issues, incorporates national level priorities, and provides a structure for detailed work plans for the Commissions and the Regional and Global Thematic Programmes of IUCN. The IUCN Programme 2009–2012, through its 5 thematic areas and 10 global results, provides focus for action and engage with members, partners and other stakeholders and deliver concrete results in our pursuit of a just world that values and conserves nature. See web site for full details of projects and programmes.

Aims/Objectives: To investigate and document of violations of international laws, regulations and treaties protecting marine wildlife species. Involved with the enforcement of international laws, regulations and treaties when there is no enforcement by national governments or international regulatory organisations due to absence of jurisdiction or lack of political will.
Projects: Uses innovative direct-action tactics to investigate, document, and take action when necessary to expose and confront illegal activities on the high seas. By safeguarding the biodiversity of our delicately-balanced ocean ecosystems it works to ensure their survival for future generations. Its primary mandate is to assume a law enforcement role as provided by the United Nations World Charter for Nature. This charter was adopted by the United Nations General Assembly on November 9, 1982. Sea Shepherd is guided by the UN Charter World Charter for Nature and cites Section 21 under the heading of Implementations as the Society's authority to act on behalf of international conservation law. Projects and campaigns on the following marine issues Dolphins, Whales, Seals and the marine environment in the Galapagos.

Aims/Objectives: Is the United Nation's global development network, an organisation advocating for change and connecting countries to knowledge, experience and resources to help people build a better life.
Projects: They are on the ground in 166 countries, working with them on their own solutions to global and national development challenges. As they develop local capacity, they draw on the people of UNDP and our wide range of partners. World leaders have pledged to achieve the Millennium Development Goals, including the overarching goal of cutting poverty in half by 2015. UNDP's network links and coordinates global and national efforts to reach these Goals. Focus is helping countries build and share solutions to the challenges of: Democratic Governance; Poverty Reduction; Crisis Prevention and Recovery; Energy and Environment and HIV/AIDS. Helps developing countries attract and use aid effectively. In all of their activities, they encourage the protection of human rights and the empowerment of women. The annual Human Development Report, commissioned by UNDP, focuses the global debate on key development issues, providing new measurement tools, innovative analysis and often controversial policy proposals. The global Report's analytical framework and inclusive approach carry over into regional, national and local Human Development Reports, also supported by UNDP. In each country office, the UNDP Resident Representative normally also serves as the Resident Coordinator of development activities for the United Nations system as a whole. Through such coordination, seeks to ensure the most effective use of UN and international aid resources.

Aims/Objectives: UNDP's work on Energy and Environment is focused on six priority areas: Frameworks and strategies for sustainable development; Effective water governance; Access to sustainable energy services; Sustainable land management to combat desertification and land degradation; Conservation and sustainable use of biodiversity and National/sectoral policy and planning to control emissions of ODS and POPs.
Projects: Frameworks and strategies for sustainable development:- seeks to develop country capacity to manage the environment and natural resources; integrate environmental and energy dimensions into poverty reduction strategies and national development frameworks; and strengthen the role of communities and of women in promoting sustainable development.

Effective water governance:- supports the sustainable use of marine, coastal and freshwater resources and improved access to water supply and sanitation services. This requires the appropriate local, national and regional water governance frameworks, and application of integrated water resources management approaches, also promotes cooperation in trans-boundary waters management.

Access to sustainable energy services:- Supports energy activities to reduce poverty and achieve sustainable development objectives at the local, national and global levels. Our work is focused on strengthening national policy frameworks to support energy for poverty reduction; promoting energy services to support growth and equity with specific focus on the situation of women; promoting clean energy technologies to mitigate climate change; and increasing access to investment financing for sustainable energy, including through the Clean Development Mechanism. Activities in these areas complement and help integrate Global Environment Facility (GEF) programmes in the field of climate change and support sustainable livelihoods.

Sustainable land management to combat desertification and land degradation:- Land degradation is one of the major causes of rural poverty, as well as one of its effects. Works to break this cycle and reduce poverty through sustainable land management and by maintaining land-based ecosystem integrity, particularly in dry-lands where the poorest, most vulnerable and marginalized people live. Assists countries and communities in land governance, drought preparedness, reform of land tenure and promotion of innovative and alternative sustainable land practices and livelihoods. Special emphasis is given here to the situation of rural women. Supports institutional and systemic capacity building to address desertification and land degradation of rural poverty reduction, through local, national and global multi-stakeholder dialogue and action. Promotes the mainstreaming and integration of major environmental conventions to reduce land degradation, help land users adapt to climate change, and maintain services through ecosystem integrity.

Conservation and sustainable use of biodiversity:- Through a close integration of GEF and core activities, helps countries and communities maintain and benefit from the biodiversity and ecosystem services that underpin human welfare and economic development, and provide the poor with food security, fuel, shelter, medicines and livelihoods – as well as clean water, disease control, and reduced vulnerability to natural disasters. Supports the sustainable management of agriculture, fisheries, forests and energy, and a pro-poor approach to conservation and protected areas, biotechnology and the development of viable, new markets for ecosystem services.

National/sectoral policy and planning to control emissions of ozone-depleting substances (ODS) and persistent organic pollutants (POPs):- The Montreal Protocol and GEF programmes of UNDP support governments as they develop and strengthen national and sectoral strategies for the sustained reduction and elimination of ODS and POPs. Enterprises are assisted in maintaining their economic competitiveness through provision of best available alternative technologies and opportunities for capacity development. Factsheets:- A set of factsheets covers all aspects of UNDP's work in Energy and Environment, including our six priority areas, cross-cutting topics such as Climate Change and the Poverty-Environment Initiative, the LPG Gas Challenge, the Global Village Energy Partnership, the Equator Initiative, and our major funding partners: the Global Environment Facility and the Montreal Protocol. Each factsheet contains information on UNDP's approach to working in energy and environment, ranging from strategies for sustainable development, water governance, sustainable energy and biodiversity conservation to land and chemicals management. Detailed facts and figures are provided on UNDP's portfolio, partners and specialists in this area, as well as success stories illustrating innovative approaches.

Energy and Environment for Sustainable Development:- UNDP's 6 Priority Areas in Energy and Environment:- Sustainable Development Strategies; Effective Water Governance; Energy for Sustainable Development; Sustainable Land Management; Conservation and Sustainable Use of Biodiversity; Chemicals Management. UNDP's Energy and Environment Funds and Initiatives:- UNDP/Global Environment Facility; Poverty and Environment Initiative; LPG Challenge; Global Village Energy Partnership; Climate Change; The Equator Initiative.

ENVIRONMENTAL INFORMATION SERVICE (EIS)

and

INFORMATION ON ENVIRONMENTAL AND ENVIRONMENTALLY RELATED ORGANISATIONS (IEERO)

<http://www.ieero.co.uk>

Here is a précis of our work

- Our main project, the Environmental Information Service, was established in 1989 and has over the past 18 years offered a free referral service to whoever asks.
- Our second project is the Global Traveller Environmental Projects and Programmes.
- Our third projects is the Products and Trade Environmental Information Resource.
- Our fourth project is the Environmental Articles from the Press.
- The service keeps details on organisations in the United Kingdom and Worldwide. The information kept, has grown in content over the years to include many different aspects of the group or organisation's activities.
- We are a non governmental, non political, non funded and non sponsored and therefore totally independent organisation.
- Alan Phillips is the main person behind the organisation and it was he that started the EIS in 1989. He has worked with and alongside environmental organisations in many roles since the early days of the 1970's.
- As the organisation is independent it therefore has to earn an income to run the its projects and the EIS does this by working as a freelance environmental advisory service as well as producing publications.
- The information, that we collate from organisations and groups, shows the work that is carried out by them. They are all doing a profoundly difficult and sometimes arduous job, in presenting details of their work in order to convince people that care and appreciation of other species, habitats, history, geographical areas, indigenous peoples and everything else that is to do with the planet, is very important and therefore, it is their work that needs to be highlighted, especially to those who are unaware of the complexities involved within our environment.
- Our enquiry service is free, contact by email and/or by post (sae required for UK enquiries, we do not accept postal enquiries from NON UK areas these are by e mail only).
- This system is ideal for individual requests but we feel that the use of the CD 'Guide', although handy for individuals, is a must where the one CD can be used by many individuals, Schools, Colleges, Universities (or any educational establishment in the UK or World Wide), businesses and local authorities to name but a few. Please see 'Publications' for more details on the CD.
- From 2009 we shall offer help to Small Businesses in order to assist them in changing their environmental and sustainable impact through their work, this we will do so through a simple question and answer method which will then enable them to take the next stage forward and maybe implement a full audit on their activities. There will be a small minimal cost for our first stage help.
